REBEL with a cause

Diego Luna on the return of space outlaw Cassian Andor as he battles the Empire's Death Star plans...

NEW SCI-FI

Andor

From Wednesday 23 April, Disney+ (three episodes released weekly)

Diego Luna (centre) as Cassian Andor

Rebellion leader Mon Mothma

One of the most iconic structures in sci-fi history is Star Wars' forbidding Death Star. Now, the story of how this deadly planetary weapon was constructed by the Galactic Empire continues in the second season of Andor, the Disney+ prequel to 2016 movie Rogue One: A Star Wars Story.

The first season revealed how space outlaw and smuggler Cassian Andor was imprisoned on Narkina 5, where the Death Star was being secretly built by slave labour. Following a dramatic mass escape, the action resumes a year later and Cassian is now an integral part of the fledgling Rebel Alliance as the Empire grows ever stronger and Death Star plans come to fruition.

This second season is broken into four groups of three episodes (released weekly), with each covering a year leading into Cassian's heroic but ultimately tragic ending in Rogue One: A Star Wars Story (which is currently available on Disney+).

As the story picks up, we find Cassian at the Empire's test facility on the planet of Sienar, where he's working undercover as a test pilot but secretly plotting to steal a new class of Imperial fighter ship. Cue a huge battle with stormtroopers and a hook-up with a band of rogue rebels on a forest planet.

Can Cassian save the galaxy?

Meanwhile, villainous Orson Krennic (Ben Mendelsohn, reprising his movie role as the Empire's military director) holds a top-secret meeting with various cronies at a palace in the mountains, where he reveals evil plans for one particular planet. There, ruthless security agent Dedra Meero (Denise Gough) and Major Partagaz (Anton Lesser) share ideas on how to impress Orson.

On the rebels' side, wily senator Mon Mothma (Genevieve O'Reilly) is still plotting rebellion from within the Empire's ruling elite, along with the mysterious Luthen Rael (Stellan Skarsgård) and their friend Vel Sartha (Faye Marsay). But danger rears up for them at an eventful family wedding at Mon Mothma's lavish Chandrila estate.

Look out, too, for Onderonian resistance fighter Saw Gerrera (Forest Whitaker) and troubled rebel-hunter Syril Karn (Kyle Soller), plus the first appearance of the movie's much-loved droid K-2SO (voiced again by Alan Tudyk). Meanwhile, will Darth Vader be joining the fray later in the series? There's huge speculation that he might…

We spoke to Diego Luna, 45, who plays Cassian Andor, on an exclusive video call to hear more about Season 2…

What challenges did you face telling Cassian's story this time? Well, I wasn't any younger, so the physical side was more challenging. You do feel it every morning on set when your body reminds you how old you actually are!

How do you see Cassian and his motives? He's very wounded but he must find a way to become part of something bigger like the Rebel Alliance. He's very afraid of how life has taken everything away from him and he doesn't know where to place his anger, resentment and pain. He could be part of something bigger. In the first season, he understands something about that and realises he has that potential, but in this final season he has to deal with all his fears and get on with the huge fight ahead.

Was it difficult to act out the yearly time jumps every three episodes? Yes, because Cassian has to go through many phases. There are major changes and big jumps in time this season. Every three episodes, you move on a year. Following events over four different years was hardcore.

A lot of Season 2 was filmed in the UK. How did you find that? We shot a big chunk of it in England in winter, which was pretty cold for a Mexican like me. We were supposedly on a very warm planet when it was actually bitterly cold weather and you could see your own breath! You think, 'This isn't going to work on screen,' but they could fix everything digitally. What they couldn't fix for actors is that you're absolutely freezing and shivering and have to pretend you are nice and warm!

Andor* reveals the history of how the rebellion started. So what significance does the show have for the whole of the Star Wars franchise? Cassian's journey matters in the Star Wars universe as it shows regular people having to get their hands dirty. They have to get involved in the rebellion for survival and that's why Andor is unique. It's about how a community understands their strength.

Toon terror

Cartoon villain Mr Ring-a-Ding attacks Belinda and the Doctor in 1950s Miami

SCI-FI

Doctor Who

Saturday, 7.15pm, BBC1

Cartoon star Mr Ring-a-Ding

When they first met last week, Belinda Chandra (Varada Sethu) told the Doctor (Ncuti Gatwa) that she had no intention of travelling with him because she didn't believe he could keep her safe.

However, something mysterious happened when the Doctor attempted to take Belinda home, and they discovered that the TARDIS was somehow being blocked from returning to the day that she was abducted – so for the time being, she's the Doctor's companion whether she likes it or not.

This week's episode, Lux, sees the pair embark on their first proper trip together through time and space as they land in Miami in 1952. Inevitably, danger lurks just around the corner when Mr Ring-a-Ding – a cheerful, singing cartoon whose films have been broadcast over and over again in cinemas – breaks out of the screen and into the real world with malevolent intent.

'The villains always get the best lines, and are much more juicy to play,' says Alan Cumming, who voices the tyrannical toon. 'My favourite kind of villains are the ones that are misunderstood. While Mr Ring-a-Ding does not have any redeeming qualities, he does start out quite fun and endearing, so there is an arc to him that I enjoyed.'

The episode is written by showrunner Russell T. Davies and directed by Amanda Brotchie, who makes her Doctor Who debut with this adventure and was thrilled by the premise that she was given.

PITCH PERFECT

'I'm a huge cinephile and so I immediately loved the setting and the nostalgia for celluloid,' says Brotchie. 'To have an animated character step out of the screen was something new, and the character is so mercurial and commanding – I'd never read anything like it. I loved the humour and wit, and the huge heart. It's the perfect episode.'

This isn't Cumming's first stint in the Whoniverse, as he previously played King James I in the 2018 story The Witchfinders opposite Jodie Whittaker's Thirteenth Doctor. But the opportunity to return and lend his voice to Mr Ring-a-Ding was impossible to resist.

'I grew up with Doctor Who, so any time it's mentioned for me to be in it, the little boy in me jumps,' says The Good Wife star, 60. 'Also, last time I was on the show, it was on location in a muddy forest in February, and I was wearing a very itchy wig and beard. So doing a voice, where I could stay warm and wear what I like, was a great boon.'

There was, however, one downside to his vocal-only role in this episode, as Cumming didn't get to be on set with Gatwa and Sethu.

'I've never met either of them!' he says. 'I only acted to them on a screen from the other side of the world.'

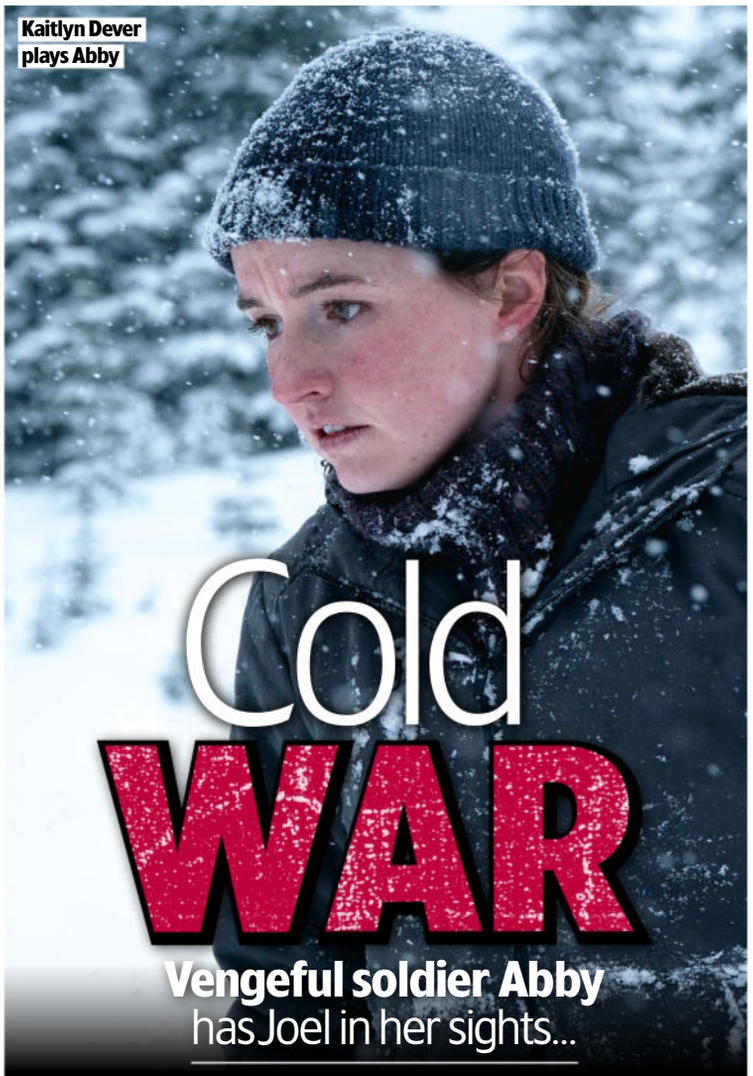
RINGING TRUE

Bringing Mr Ring-a-Ding to life in the 3D world of Doctor Who was a challenge for the show's production team, but it was one that director Amanda Brotchie wholeheartedly embraced.

'I treated the animated character like any other villain, using moves and angles that fitted the character and story beat,' she explains. 'We used a Mr Ring-a-Ding stand-in to get our focus points – it was much harder for the cast, who had to look as though they were all looking at the same point where Mr Ring-a-Ding was supposed to be.

'And I was fortunate to be able to work with the crew at [visual-effects company] Framestore, who brought him to life. They were meticulous in creating a cartoon and character from the era of the Fleischer Studios [who created Betty Boop and Popeye] and giving him such mischievous expressiveness. Some of the animators even worked on Who Framed Roger Rabbit – animation royalty.'

The chaotic and cruel cartoon



Kaitlyn Dever plays Abby

Cold WAR

Vengeful soldier Abby has Joel in her sights...

SCI-FI

The Last of Us
Easter Monday, 9pm, Sky Atlantic

The tentative calm in the sanctuary town of Jackson looked to be short-lived at the end of last week's opening episode of Season 2 of The Last of Us, as vengeful soldier Abby (Dopesick's Kaitlyn Dever) and her crew arrived on the scene.

Abby has already stated her intention to find and kill Joel (Pedro Pascal) – but how far is she willing to go to achieve her goal?

'Abby is a woman dealing with intense grief and loss, and that's the fuel for her rage,' Dever, 28, tells TV&Satellite Week. 'This show asks the questions: who is the villain and who is the hero? I don't feel that the answers are so black and white. I really wanted to humanise Abby in the best way that I could, and that meant really diving deeper into her past.'

Inhabiting a character that is driven primarily by a thirst for revenge was a challenge that Dever was excited to take on – and she says she found the experience surprisingly uplifting

'During this shoot, I was personally going through a lot in my life,' she reveals. 'It may have been a little therapeutic for me to shed a lot of the anger that I was feeling. It's such an intense role, but that intensity was helpful for me at that time in my life.'

The role of Abby isn't Dever's first encounter with The Last of Us. A previous plan for the hit video-game franchise would have seen it adapted into a movie, and Dever was one of the actors under consideration for the lead role of teenager Ellie, eventually portrayed in the TV series by Bella Ramsey.

'I was never officially cast – it was just a very early discussion,' recalls Dever. 'With film-making, things like that can disappear very easily; it happens all the time in this business. It was something I always thought about, because I just loved the game. 'But I got older, and when it came back into my life in this way, it definitely felt like I was playing the role that I was always meant to play.'

Deadly inheritance

A family fights over a millionaire's will in an all-star thriller

NEW DRAMA

I, Jack Wright

Wed, 9pm, U&Alibi (box set, Sky Box Sets/Virgin TV Box Sets/NOW)

The popularity of dramas like Succession and Yellowstone suggests that we can't get enough of watching wealthy dysfunctional families at each other's throats. This week, U&Alibi's all-star mystery thriller I, Jack Wright features another super-rich clan that is torn apart by rivalry and greed.

Written by Chris Lang (Unforgotten), the six-parter begins with the apparent suicide of millionaire Jack Wright (Trevor Eve). Married to third wife Sally (Nikki Amuka-Bird), Jack had two sons from his first marriage, Gray (John Simm) and John (Daniel Rigby).

At the reading of Jack's will, however, most of the family is stunned to learn that they've inherited almost nothing. And the mystery deepens when DCI Hector Morgan (Harry Lloyd) unearths evidence to suggest that Jack didn't take his own life but was murdered.

'I was intrigued by the mystery surrounding all these characters'
JOHN SIMM

Here, Simm, 54, and Amuka-Bird, 49, tell us more…

How would you describe your characters?

Amuka-Bird Sally started life in foster homes and has carved out this extraordinary legal career for herself. She's very glamorous but she's worked hard for what she's achieved, so she's no gold digger. However, as the series opens, we find her in prison.

Simm Gray's a troubled soul. He's a 1990s throwback with a Liam Gallagher-type swagger who runs an indie record label. Gray's on a downward spiral – he drinks, takes drugs and owes money to some very dangerous people.

How do Sally and Gray react to the news that they'll receive hardly any of Jack's fortune?

Amuka-Bird The reading of the will divides everybody into those who are surprised to receive a windfall and those who've lost everything. Sally's already enduring the grief of losing her husband and now there's this huge feeling of betrayal and injustice that everything has been stripped away from her. But Sally's not going down without a fight.

Simm Gray's absolutely gutted. He feels like he's owed – his dad neglected him growing up and, in turn, Gray was a terrible father to his own daughter, Emily [played by Ruby Ashbourne Serkis]. Living the rock-'n'-roll lifestyle, he missed out on a lot. I was intrigued by the mystery surrounding all these characters and in piecing together this jigsaw of what's gone on.

With so many story arcs, how will viewers keep up?

Amuka-Bird Our writer Chris has come up with this narrating device whereby, alongside the main drama, each member of the Wright family is filming their part of a true-crime-style documentary in the present day. So, for example, Sally is filming her 'interview' from prison, then we see flashbacks to events leading up to her incarceration.

The detectives suspect Jack was murdered. So, did Gray or Sally do the deed?

Amuka-Bird All the characters are suspects. The last thing Sally wants to hear is that her husband was murdered and that she could be incriminated, so she's on her own hunt to uncover the truth.

Simm Gray's a bit of an idiot, but I don't think he's capable of murder. As secrets are revealed, you realise why Gray is the way he is. I had fun stepping into his shoes. After playing a good man like Roy Grace [in ITV1's Grace], it was nice to go back to portraying the anti-heroes I used to specialise in.

Race Across the World

Wednesday, 9pm, BBC1

The Great Wall of China is the starting point when the latest batch of brave adventurers strap on their backpacks to compete in BBC1's Race Across the World.

As the five pairs negotiate an epic 14,000km trek across Asia without mobile phones, internet access, bank cards or flights, they have a budget of only £1,140 each, which they can supplement by taking jobs along the way.

But time is also against them, as they battle to become the first team to reach the final checkpoint in Kanniyakumari in southern India and win £20,000.

Sisters Elizabeth and Letitia

Limbering up with their trusty maps are sisters Elizabeth and Letitia, brothers Brian and Melvyn, teenage couple Fin and Sioned, former husband and wife Gaz and Yin, and mum and son Caroline and Tom.

DILEMMA

But tackling the opening leg proved a test of mettle for them all, as they had to decide whether to head for the first checkpoint in Huangling via Shanghai or a less-travelled rural route.

'I'd watched Series 2 when they went across South America and said, "That's made for me." I relished the challenge, because I've led a comfortable life, and I wanted to step outside that,' says housewife Caroline, 60.

'But I found it overwhelming and we struggled from the offset – we were desperate to reach anywhere south but it was hard to get tickets. We experienced such kindness from people, though, and Tom and I are closer.'

Exes Gaz and Yin

Melvyn and Brian

For Brian and Melvyn, the trip was also a chance to spend more time together, but their first attempt at trying to earn money by working in a busy restaurant and spending the night in the spartan staff quarters proved eye-opening.

'It was more or less just a board and we thought they were joking, but I had a good night's sleep!' shares driving instructor Melvyn, 65. 'There's also the language problem – figuring out a sign in Chinese is difficult. But it's about adapting. You learn quickly, and luck comes in as well.'

EXCITEMENT

Meanwhile, Fin and Sioned, the show's youngest-ever pairing at 18 and 19, were just eager to get the chance to explore the world.

'After the first few days, I loved not having a phone,' smiles engineering student Fin, who is diabetic. 'We're so young and have never pushed ourselves, so this was a good way to do a challenge together, and see if we can do life together. We always wanted to travel and this is something money can't buy. It's been incredible.'

Pilgrimage: The Road Through the Alps

Easter Sunday-Tuesday, 9pm, BBC2 (box set, BBC iPlayer)

Seven famous faces undertake a spiritual journey through Austria and Switzerland as they hunt for answers about the meaning of life in the return of BBC2's Pilgrimage.

The three-part series sees them trek 300km from the Austrian Tyrol along a traditional pilgrim route into Switzerland while staying in hostels and visiting religious sites.

This time, the group includes The Traitors' Harry Clark, a practising Catholic; The Wanted's Jay McGuiness, who is agnostic; actor Helen Lederer, who has Jewish and Protestant roots; and comic Daliso Chaponda, who is looking into the Baha'i faith. They are joined by presenter Jeff Brazier, who enjoys meditation; journalist Nelufar Hedayat, a 'modern' Muslim; and Paralympian Stef Reid, a Christian.

The pilgrims with a ceremonial sword

For Clark, a former soldier, embarking on the pilgrimage was a way of cementing his faith.

'You've seen my Traitor side and now you'll see my Faithful side,' smiles the 24-year-old. 'My religion has always been strong,

Joe Lycett's United States of Birmingham

Tuesday, 9pm, Sky Max & Sky Showcase

As a proud ambassador of the UK's second city, Joe Lycett is always looking to get his beloved Birmingham on the radar.

In his new four-part series, he embarks on a road trip across North America to visit its 18 Birminghams and find out how they compare to his home city, in the hope of persuading them all to join an international alliance.

'I've wanted to go to Birmingham, Alabama, ever since I was a kid because I was always curious to see what another place called Birmingham looks like,' Lycett tells TV&Satellite Week. 'But when our team started looking but in the Army, I suffered with my mental health, and it wasn't until I turned to God that I didn't feel alone any more. With Pilgrimage, I wanted to know I was on the right path and reconnect with my faith.'

SPIRITUAL JOURNEY

Along the way, the celebrities stay at the Cistercian monastery of Stams, while in the Church of St Vigil in Obsaurs, they marvel at early pilgrim graffiti. Later in the series, they experience a sword ceremony at the Bruderschaft chapel in St Christoph am Arlberg before finishing their pilgrimage at Einsiedeln Abbey in Switzerland.

While the trek itself was arduous, for Clark, the most challenging and rewarding aspect of the trip was the chance to reflect on different approaches to faith with his fellow pilgrims.

'The physical side wasn't bad after six years in the Army where you're always walking with heavy stuff on your back,' he says. 'Not pushing my religion on to others was a struggle, but we all really connected. The whole experience has strengthened my faith.'

into it, that was the tip of the Birmingham iceberg. None of us knew there were that many!'

QUIET START

Lycett's journey begins with a visit to the community of Birmingham in Burlington County, New Jersey, which has a population of just 33 people – although the locals make up for their lack in numbers with the warmth of their welcome.

'It was a fascinating place to start because it was pretty far out of the centre of things,' says Lycett. 'We filmed at the White Dotte Dairy Bar on the outskirts and met Chris and his family, who run it. I think a chemical plant and a post office are the two other main things there, so you get a sense of the place.'

Although his quest gets off to a promising start in New Jersey, Lycett soon discovers that not all of the Birminghams on his itinerary are so hospitable at first.

'When we filmed in Birmingham, Missouri, they thought it was a prank and I was some kind of Sacha Baron Cohen figure!' he laughs. 'But when they saw it was a real thing that we were doing, they were a lot less frightened of us.'

BRUTE FORCE

Tom Hardy takes on Triads in an ultra-violent crime thriller

NETFLIX NEW Havoc

Available: Friday 25 April
Genre: Action thriller

Fresh from playing a gangland fixer in Paramount+ crime drama MobLand, Tom Hardy is embroiled in more murky underworld business this week as troubled US detective Walker in Netflix action thriller Havoc.

When a drug deal goes wrong, Walker tangles with a crime syndicate, a dodgy politician and even his own colleagues as he uncovers a web of corruption while attempting to rescue the politician's son.

'It's a hard-boiled, noirish cop thriller set over two nights before Christmas, but it's not really a Christmas movie,' explains director Gareth Evans. 'Walker is a corrupt cop who dabbles in some stuff he shouldn't do. He gets tasked with finding the son of a mayoral candidate who is embroiled in a drug bust gone wrong and a gangland killing in Chinatown – and he has to find him before the good cops arrest him or the Triads kill him.'

SHADES OF GREY

Hardy's troubled protagonist adds to the noirish feel of the film.

'Walker is haunted by a tragic past and carries a lot of baggage,' says Evans, whose cast also features Jessie Mei Li as Walker's rookie partner Ellie, alongside Forest Whitaker and Timothy Olyphant. 'He's also an anti-hero at times, and tackles problems with brute force.'

Evans drew attention for his ultra-violent action scenes in Sky crime drama Gangs of London, and brings a similar sensibility to this project.

'Havoc is my love letter to the films that came out of Hong Kong in the 1980s and 90s,' he explains. 'It all starts with me and the stunt team, and we get together in a room full of crash mats, cardboard boxes and rubber knives and rubber guns. It's a fun process of trial and elimination.'

For Shadow and Bone star Jessie Mei Li, building an on-screen relationship with Hardy's character was hugely enjoyable. 'Ellie's a rookie police officer, and it's her first day as Walker's new partner,' she explains. 'You need to feel that these two characters have this kinship and mutual understanding. And Tom's a very unpredictable actor, so that kept things exciting.'

Forest Whitaker as mayoral candidate Lawrence Beaumont

Although the action is set in America, much of the film was shot on location in Wales, something proud Welshman Evans was very happy about.

'I wanted to be able to bring something like Havoc there, and prove we could do a film of this scale and this size,' he says. 'We were all over every inch of Cardiff, Swansea and Port Talbot that vaguely resembled America. It was fun just to walk around Swansea city centre and look at every alleyway that I could find and be like, "Yeah, we can shoot there!"'

Two elite ballet companies swap their star dancers in a new comedy drama

prime Étoile

NEW Available: Thu 24 April Genre: Comedy drama Season: 1 Episodes: 8

Passion, politics and pirouettes take centre stage in new comedy drama Étoile, which pulls back the curtain on the competitive and high-stakes world of professional ballet dancing.

From the creators of The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel, the eight-parter follows the dancers and artistic staff of two renowned but struggling ballet companies as they hatch a plan to trade their top talent in an effort to keep their institutions afloat.

New York-based director Jack (Luke Kirby) and his counterpart in Paris, Geneviève (Charlotte Gainsbourg), devise a year-long exchange programme to revitalise public interest in their art form. But when their principal dancers are resistant to change, Jack and Geneviève find themselves managing rivalries and culture clashes rather than attracting audiences.

'I was entranced by the notion of doing something around dance because I have a secret affection for it,' says Kirby, 46, who won an Emmy for his role in Mrs. Maisel, created by Amy Sherman-Palladino and her husband Daniel. 'We had just finished on Mrs. Maisel when Amy and Dan told me about this new thing they were working on. Any excuse to stay with them sounded good to me.'

Luke Kirby as Jack

The cast of Étoile ('star' in French) also includes Lou de Laâge as Paris' prima ballerina Cheyenne, who resentfully transfers to New York, while David Alvarez plays her dance partner, Gael, and Gideon Glick is quirky choreographer Tobias Bell. Real professional ballet dancers also feature, and look out for Simon Callow and David Haig as guest stars.

HIGH JINKS

'I trained as a dancer, so I've been mystified that nothing has really come close to capturing the weirdness of the dance world. They're an odd, amazing bunch of people,' says Amy Sherman-Palladino, who also co-created short-lived 2012 ballet comedy Bunheads.

'We generally write about blood families because they give endless stories, but Étoile is about the family of collective dance companies in different cities. It's about the professionals and the elite athletes that they become. We were interested in their dynamic and struggles, the interchange and the sexual high jinks.'

How to survive in the planet's most challenging environments...

Disney+ Secrets of the Penguins

NEW Available: Easter Mon Genre: Documentary Season: 1 Episodes: 3

Penguins have always held a special place in our hearts, but these lovable flightless birds are also resourceful and resilient, as explorer Bertie Gregory reveals in his new documentary series.

The three-parter captures remarkable behaviour from different species in contrasting habitats as they negotiate life's challenges. In the opener, embedded with an Antarctic colony of emperor penguins, Gregory captures some remarkable footage, including two expectant parents practising how to transfer an egg from one to the other by using a snowball.

He also reveals the power of the huddle, which protects the colony from harsh winter storms. For the chicks that are left to fend for themselves when their parents head off to sea, it's a vital survival strategy they must learn quickly.

'As this wind builds, the chicks start gravitating together,' says Gregory. 'Just like their parents do, the chicks start forming their own huddle.'

The third episode showcases gentoo penguins on the Antarctic Peninsula, while in the second episode, Galapagos penguins take advantage of pelicans diving to catch fish.

'When the pelican's mouth is full of water and fish, they need to push out the water and hold on to the fish, and, at that point, they're vulnerable,' explains Gregory. 'So the penguins steal the fish right out of the pelican's beak.'

Penn Badgley as Joe Goldberg

Serial killer Joe returns to New York City in a deadly final chapter

NETFLIX You

NEW Available: Thursday 24 April
Genre: Thriller Season: 5
Episodes: 10

Stalking, kidnap, manipulation and murder – Joe Goldberg has proved himself as the most irredeemable of villains throughout four seasons of hit thriller You. But when he returns to New York for a fifth and final chapter, can the charming psychopath turn over a new leaf?

The 10-part series picks up three years after bookstore manager turned literature professor Joe (Penn Badgley) left London with socialite Kate Lockwood (Ghosts' Charlotte Ritchie), who's now his wife and the wealthy CEO of her family's company. Joe has his son, Henry, back now, too, and is living the high life in NYC while planning to reopen his beloved downtown bookstore.

However, when secrets from Kate's past threaten to resurface, how far will the power couple go to protect their status?

'Coming back to New York is great for me because it's my home, and I feel like it's a return to form for Joe and for the show,' explains Badgley, 38. 'Joe once again owns Mooney's bookstore, and he and Kate are trying to be good people, whatever that means to them, so they are spending millions of dollars through the philanthropic deeds of the Lockwood Corporation.

'But Joe is also trying to stomach being a billionaire and he's doing a good job of fooling himself, as he always does.'

Anna Camp joins the cast in the dual role of Kate's self-serving twin sisters, Raegan and Maddie, while Griffin Matthews plays Kate's devoted brother, Teddy, and Nava Mau guest-stars as Detective Marquez.

The Handmaid's Tale favourite Madeline Brewer also joins the show as free-spirited, literature-loving Bronte, whom Joe hires at the bookstore after he catches her breaking in.

'Joe immediately starts to fall for Bronte and we see him trying not to make her his next "You"', says Badgley. 'It doesn't seem like he's going to succeed…'

Badgley adds that saying goodbye to a character who he's portrayed for seven years is bittersweet.

'I've done things with this role that I'll never get to do again,' he explains. 'I think I've had my quotient of fake blood for a while, but in the end, I'll probably shed a tear for old Joe.'

Stolen history

Andrew Garfield learns his ancestor's actions inspired the film The Monuments Men

NEW FACTUAL

Who Do You Think You Are?

Tuesday, 9pm, BBC1

The Amazing Spider-Man star Andrew Garfield grew up in Surrey with his parents, Richard and Lynn, knowing little about his Jewish background. So it's an emotional journey when he answers some long-held questions about his heritage as genealogy series Who Do You Think You Are? returns to BBC1 this week.

'I don't know much about my family history. I know there was an exodus from Poland to escape persecution on my dad's side,' says Garfield, 41, who found fame with 2010 movie The Social Network.

'But I feel a longing to connect more to my Jewish heritage; I'm really curious about that. There are large parts of my identity that I feel quite far away from, and I'm excited to pursue some unknown truths. It's a tantalising trail.'

Garfield's search begins in Kielce, Poland, birthplace of his paternal great-grandparents, Ludwig and Sara, who moved to the UK in 1909, where they anglicised their surname from Garfinkel to Garfield.

EMOTIONAL DISCOVERIES

However, as he digs deeper and unearths more about his Jewish ancestry, his journey takes him to the Holocaust memorial site at Nazi extermination camp Treblinka.

With no records of Ludwig's sisters Szajndla, Dworja and Basia after 1935, Garfield learns that they were most likely murdered at Treblinka, along with most of Kielce's Jewish population.

'Their lives were deemed so valueless that the Nazis attempted to erase even their names,' says Garfield. 'They were just normal women who wanted a life, but this journey we've been on has recovered my family's memory of them, and I'm very grateful for that.'

Later, however, there's a powerful full-circle moment when Garfield learns his great-grandmother Sara's nephew Bernard Taper, who emigrated to America before World War Two, became part of a crack team who tracked down artworks stolen from Jewish families by the Nazis.

By the end of their mission, they'd returned four million objects, inspiring the 2014 film The Monuments Men, starring George Clooney and Matt Damon.

'There's poetic justice in that,' says Garfield. 'I'm sad the journey is over, but it couldn't have ended on a better note.'

RESCUE our rivers

Liz Bonnin and Ade Adepitan report from two ambitious restoration projects

NEW FACTUAL

Our Changing Planet: Restoring Our Rivers

Easter Sunday, 7pm, BBC1

Rivers are the planet's lifeblood, vital for both wildlife and humans. Across the globe, two billion people rely on rivers for drinking water and a quarter of the food we eat depends on them, too. But many of the world's rivers are dying from being dammed, diverted or polluted, while a third of all fresh-water species now face extinction.

However, all is not lost. Two pioneering river-restoration projects that aim to bring back life to the Klamath in California and the Seine in Paris offer hope, as Liz Bonnin and Ade Adepitan discover in Our Changing Planet: Restoring Our Rivers, the fourth update in the seven-year BBC1 series.

SUCCESS STORIES

While Bonnin, 48, witnesses an ambitious project to dismantle the Klamath's four hydroelectric dams and restore its vital salmon population, bringing back bears, condor and ospreys, Adepitan is in Paris to follow the clean-up of the Seine.

For decades, raw sewage killed off almost all its aquatic life and caused levels of E. coli 500 times above the safe limit. But thanks to new waste-water-treatment plants and a mega-engineering project to stop sewage flowing into the river, the number of fish species has increased from three to more than 40, and residents are even swimming in its waters.

'The Seine was declared biologically dead in the 1960s because it was so polluted,' says former Paralympian Adepitan, 52. 'But the 2024 Olympics and Paralympics gave the Paris mayor the impetus to say, "We're going to fix this." And now it's finally coming back to life.

'It was a privilege to be there and see the restoration. But the highlight was getting to swim in the Seine.'

Having also witnessed wildlife returning to the Klamath, Bonnin says she's hopeful that other dammed or polluted rivers around the globe can be restored.

'These are two stories of hope,' she says. 'As humans, we've made a mess of things but we're also capable of turning things around – the will just has to be there.'

TRAP

MOVIE OF THE WEEK

Serial killer Josh Hartnett discovers the concert he's at with his daughter is just a ruse to catch him...

THRILLER

Friday, 12.10pm & 8pm, Sky Premiere ★★★★

If you are expecting some wild twist in M Night Shyamalan's latest, you will be disappointed. There isn't one. It doesn't turn out that everybody was dead the whole time or that the wind was out to kill us. Here's the crazy thing though: for once, Shyamalan doesn't need that bluff to deliver a wildly entertaining thriller.

In Trap, Josh Hartnett returns to the screen as long-suffering dad Cooper to teen daughter Riley (Ariel Donoghue). The two are attending an arena concert by pop star Lady Raven (M Night's daughter Saleka Shyamalan) when Hartnett's secret serial killer dad slowly realises the entire concert is a ruse by the FBI to nab him. He spends the majority of the concert trying to find some way out, while ensuring his daughter still has a great time.

The Lady Raven sequences go on for a bit too long – M Night is clearly enamored with his daughter's talent as a pop singer – but other than that minor indulgence, this is a taught thriller that slowly ties a rope around Hartnett's throat and squeezes as the gig rolls on.

Hartnett makes a surprisingly effective villain, barely suppressing his sociopathic rage to assure his daughter has the best-night-ever. Donoghue wins the day, however, vacillating between teenage elation over meeting her idol and absolute terror when she slowly begins to discover her devoted dad's dark side. 2024, 15, 105MIN

The deserved winner of the 2025 Oscar for Best International Feature Film, this powerful true-story drama tells the tale of a Brazilian family's resistance and survival under the country's brutal dictatorship. Fernanda Torres delivers a performance of grace and resilience as Eunice Paiva, the wife and mother of five who holds the family together after her husband, a former congressman, is taken by the authorities from their Rio de Janeiro home in 1971, never to return. Director Walter Salles has known the Paiva family closely since he was a teenager in the 1960s and he gives his film's early scenes a warmth and intimacy that makes its turn towards tragedy even more poignant. Who would have thought that the Gerard Butler action thriller Den of Thieves would be the start of a potential franchise? But with writer-director Christian Gudegast back in the driving seat and Butler once again front and centre, here we are. Ditching the US setting for Nice, France, this sequel sees Butler's loose cannon cop drop his badge and go all in with O'Shea Jackson Jr – the guy who got away with millions at the end of the first film. With a crew of Balkans, they plan the biggest diamond heist in history. And then the Mafia get involved... The break-in scenes are brilliantly filmed, with Gudegast also broadening his canvas and plot intricacies, making for a bigger, bolder picture. CRIME DRAMA

The Alto Knights

From Easter Monday, to buy or rent from digital stores ★★★

This true-story Mafia drama about rival Italian-American gang bosses in 1950s New York boasts a highly impressive Mob-movie pedigree: director Barry Levinson helmed 1992's Oscar-nominated Bugsy, screenwriter Nicholas Pileggi co-wrote Martin Scorsese's 1990 classic Goodfellas, and star Robert De Niro is practically synonymous with the genre. So it's a disappointment that this film is far from a classic. That said, although some of the movie's storytelling choices are questionable, the tale itself is intriguing enough to keep us onboard. The big gimmick is its casting of De Niro as both of the warring mobsters: Frank Costello and Vito Genovese. Former childhood friends who made their mark as Prohibition bootleggers, they are at odds after Genovese returns from World War Two and is furious Costello won't give him back his place in New York's Mafia hierarchy. De Niro makes his dual roles work, vividly establishing Costello as the cool, cautious one and Genovese as the lethal hot-head (think Joe Pesci in Goodfellas but worse), so it's a shame when they sit down together we don't get more fireworks. Debra Messing and Kathrine Narducci hold their own as the men's respective wives, but in the end this is a tale about jowly, liver-spotted old men and, as such, just a little dull. 2024, 15, 123MIN

The neat idea behind this Pixar animation is that what we're watching was the favourite film of Toy Story's Andy back in 1995, when we first met him and his playthings. The opening text informs us that the movie launched a toy range, and thus the Space Ranger Buzz Lightyear figure winged his way into Andy's hands. This origin story is great fun with sensational animation and likeable characters (shout-outs to Taika Waititi's Mo, Keke Palmer's Izzy and Peter Sohn's show-stealing robo-cat Sox). Mila Kunis and Kate McKinnon are best friends flitting and fleeing from LA to Vienna, and on to Paris, Prague and Berlin, bullets zinging around them, after Kunis is dumped by her boyfriend (Justin Theroux) who turns out to be a CIA agent. The stars' deliriously dotty rapport ensures we stay for the ride in this knockabout action comedy. 2018, 15, 114MIN

COMEDY

Asteroid City

Starts today, Netflix ★★★★

Sex ●●● Violence ●●● Language ●●●

Writer-director Wes Anderson's delightfully playful romp offers a wry exploration of life's mysteries, set in a sun-kissed southwestern US town where Junior Stargazers (and parents) visit a meteor-crater site to display their inventions. Anderson touches on themes of mortality, modern dread and nuclear fears and, as usual, there's a starry ensemble cast to savour – including Scarlett Johansson, Jason Schwarzman, Steve Carell and Tom Hanks – as well as no end of invention and drollery on show. 2023, 12, 105MIN

WALL•E

Available now, Disney+ ★★★★★

Sex ●●● Violence ●●● Language ●●●

WALL•E is a rusty robot sorting rubbish on a devastated Earth, while mankind survives in giant spaceships. Then one such ship drops off a shiny search robot named EVE – and WALL•E falls in love. Enchantingly told with hardly any dialogue, this inventive animation is an inspired work of extraordinary imagination. A total one-off with universal charm and appeal, it's out of this world. 2008, U, 103MIN

Munich

8pm, Sky Thriller ★★★★

Sex ●●● Violence ●●● Language ●●●

Director Steven Spielberg's masterful fact-based political thriller is set in the aftermath of the 1972 Munich Olympic Games. Eric Bana plays the leader of a covert team of assassins (comprising Ciarán Hinds, Mathieu Kassovitz, Hanns Zischler and Daniel Craig) assembled by the Israeli secret service Mossad to avenge the deaths of the Israeli athletes at the hands of Palestinian Black September terrorists. 2005, 15, 164MIN

CRIME DRAMA

The Mule

10.40pm, BBC1 (11.10pm Wales) ★★★★

Sex ●●● Violence ●●● Language ●●●

Clint Eastwood directs and stars in a crime drama based on the improbable but true story of a 90-year-old drug runner for a Mexican cartel. Eastwood's long-divorced father stumbles into an unlikely new profession as a courier for Andy Garcia's drug kingpin, passing under the radar because he is elderly and white. The telling of this tale is leisurely and straightforward yet alive to the story's ironies and humour. 2018, 15, 116MIN

HORROR

Relic

11pm, BBC2 ★★★★

Sex ●●● Violence ●●● Language ●●●

This unnerving Australian chiller creates a powerful allegory for the anguish of dementia. Emily Mortimer arrives at her family home with daughter Bella Heathcote, with her elderly mother (Robyn Nevin) gone missing. But the film's mood shifts from family drama to unsettling terror. It takes time to get under your skin, but is a deeply layered, genuinely creepy movie. 2020, 15, 89MIN

Kyren Wilson

LIVE SNOOKER

Sat-Fri, BBC1, BBC2, BBC4, BBC iPlayer, TNT Sports & Discovery+

The Crucible Theatre's doors swing open this weekend as the best players on the planet arrive in Sheffield for the World Snooker Championship.

The venue's hallowed green baize has seen plenty of glorious victories and heartbreaking defeats over the years and 32 players will be dreaming of lifting the trophy when the main draw gets under way on Saturday. Last year's champion Kyren Wilson is defending his crown, and will face stiff competition from previous winners Judd Trump and Mark Selby, while Ronnie O'Sullivan was leaving it until the last minute before deciding whether he would compete this year.

We asked seven-time world champion and BBC expert Stephen Hendry to tell us more…

Stephen Hendry

Legend Stephen Hendry gives his predictions ahead of the Crucible showpiece

World Snooker Championship

Who are you tipping to take the title this year? I think the tournament is very open. There's a handful of players that can do it, but my personal pick is Mark Selby – he's got a great chance. Judd Trump is the bookies' favourite, but he's not got the best record at the Crucible. He's won the title once in 2019, but in recent years when he's been regarded as the best player in the world, he hasn't delivered.

How do you rate Kyren Wilson's chances? There's this thing called the 'Crucible curse', where anyone who wins the world title for the first time has never defended it successfully. Kyren's going to be asked about that a lot and he's gone on record to say he's been working with a sports psychologist to get himself prepared.

Chinese players are always a strong force. How do you expect them to fare? Wu Yize has shown great potential at the age of 21, but the most interesting Chinese player is Zhao Xintong, who's recently returned from a ban. He's going to have to go through the qualifying phases ahead of the tournament proper, but I think he's fifth or sixth in the betting to take the title despite that. He's a huge talent, so it will be interesting to see how he does.

China's Zhao Xintong

Who else should we keep an eye out for? Shaun Murphy was brilliant at The Masters, Mark Allen has been playing well, and then the elephant in the room – will Ronnie O'Sullivan turn up and play? We share the record, with seven titles, but he'll be 50 later this year, so he doesn't have many chances left to win it again. He hasn't played since January, so if he does turn up it's going to be tough.

Of your seven world titles, which is your favourite? In 1993, I won every match pretty easily and then I beat Jimmy White with a session to spare in the final. I played well in every game and won every match without really being troubled, so that's the one I take most pleasure from.

Women's Champions League

Saturday & Easter Sunday, TNT Sports 1 & TNT Sports 2

Could two English teams meet in the final for the first time? The semi-final first legs take place this week, with Arsenal hosting eight-time winners Lyon at the Emirates (Saturday, kick-off 12.30pm) after knocking out Real Madrid, and Chelsea travelling to holders Barcelona (Easter Sunday, 5pm) in a third successive semi-final meeting between the clubs. The Blues have never won the Champions League, but confidence is high thanks to a dominant season that has seen Sonia Bompastor's side already lift the Women's League Cup and establish a formidable lead at the top of the WSL. The match sees England midfielder Keira Walsh return to Barcelona after joining Chelsea in February for £400,000, having won the trophy with Barca in the past two seasons.

We learn that water is essential for life, and how it's constantly recycled through the water cycle.

Code of Silence

Rose Ayling-Ellis headlines a thriller about a risky police operation

FIRST LOOK

A deaf woman faces emotional turmoil as she tries to help bring down a gang in ITV1 drama Code of Silence.

The six-part crime thriller, airing from 18 May, stars Rose Ayling-Ellis as Alison Brooks, who works in a police canteen. But when DS Ashleigh Francis (Charlotte Ritchie) and DI James Marsh (Andrew Buchan) spot Alison's talent for lip-reading, they realise that she could be an asset for their covert investigation into a heist that is being plotted by underworld figures.

As Alison is drawn into the dangerous new realm of undercover surveillance and has to lip-read conversations between the criminals, trouble brews when she becomes drawn to one of the suspects, Liam Barlow (Kieron Moore)...

Andrew Buchan as DI James Marsh

DS Francis needs Alison's help

GROUNDBREAKING

Nathan Armarkwei Laryea, Joe Absolom, Beth Goddard, Andrew Scarborough and Rolf Choutan co-star, while comedian John Bishop makes a cameo appearance.

'It's a fantastic opportunity to combine my love of tense, twisty thrillers with my experience of lip-reading and hearing loss,' says writer Catherine Moulton. 'I will do my best to make sure that the story keeps audiences on the edge of their seats.'

'I'm so thrilled to be coming on board,' adds Ayling-Ellis. 'When I first read Catherine's script, it was obvious that her first-hand experiences and understanding have enabled her to write an authentic character and I knew I had to be a part of this project.'

WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

Lindsay Duncan

The actor will star in BBC1's eight-part drama Mint as a crime family's matriarch, whose granddaughter (Emma Laird) embarks on an intense romance. Laura Fraser and Lewis Gribben are also in the cast.

Johnny Vegas

Quest's eight-part series Johnny Vegas' Little Shop of Antiques will see the comedian open up his own antiques shop and cameras will follow him as he looks for quirky items for the business to repair and sell.
